

The only rate that matters is the total. Posted rates and advertising need to state the total, regardless of how the company divides up the money. Imagine if the local grocery store or gas station were to add similar fees; the stupidity of this should be obvious.